Description :

Prsentation de l'diteur Jason Arias is not your average 22 year old. He has been genetically and cybernetically enhanced but thats only the beginning. He is an emotionless extraterrestrial born to human parents and living amongst us. Both he and his implanted thinking computer were damaged when reborn on Earth and must go through life as less than what they really are. The purpose of their mission: to gain permanent emotions from the more primitive society that is Earth. If he is successful, he will be the first of his species to do so in nearly 200,000 years. Hope lies in the fact that he is capable of emotional episodes and he has been able to forge true friendships. However, he does have the chance of completing his mission if he can truly care for Ariel, the closest human in his life. But he better know his heart soon. Their lives are in danger of ending tonight unless he can recover what his species has lost. Prsentation de l'diteur Jason Arias is not your average 22 year old. Biographie de l'auteur Arnulfo Cantareros love with science fiction started when he saw Star Trek the motion picture as a young child. He graduated with a degree in Computer Engineering and Logistics Systems Management from Colorado Technical University and this kindled his love for writing. He wanted to write stories that were completely original but without being over the top. He keeps writing and creating new concepts to capture and captivate the attention of the public. Arnulfo lived most of his life in Colorado Springs, Colorado and now resides in California where he enjoys the weather and everything his new state has to offer from the people to the food.
