Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurA satiric story from Hell, set in Heaven. God's having a bad day. Once upon a time, He made the mistake of dividing Heaven into realms and provinces, overseen by deities jostling for territory and profits. Now everything is sliding out of control. The one-time Creator of the Universe is estranged from his son, riddled with guilt, and fighting battles on multiple fronts. His few remaining rules are being bypassed,

His angels are turning up dead. Unless He can find out who is gunning for Him, the unthinkable might occur. 'Flies for the Mayans' is a violent dark comedy of post-Biblical proportions. Get ready for a roller-coaster ride into unexpected territory. ABOUT THE AUTHOR Ian Fraser is a multi-award winning playwright and author. Penguin Books published his autobiography, dealing with his experiences in the army under Apartheid. His work was nominated for and gradually won most of the South African theatre awards. He relocated to the USA in 2006. Since arriving, his work has been staged in Wisconsin, Florida, Scotland (in the UK), and in 2009, by Brown University.
